Re: United States v. Zacarias Moussaoui
Criminal No. 01-455-A

Dear Counsel:

Yesterday, we received three communications from Mr. Moussaoui, only one of which was filed. That pleading was denied by an Order issued yesterday. The other two writings are rambling communications that do not request any appropriate relief from the Court. We have stamped them "received" and will consider them to be correspondence to which no response is necessary.

We are giving defendant the benefit of the doubt that he had not yet received the orders staying the case and warning him about filing frivolous motions when he sent these communications to the Court. However, defendant is hereby warned that asking the Court to order standby counsel to give him more paper and attacking the Queen of England are the kinds of frivolous writings that waste the Court's time and are exactly the types of pleadings the Court warned him against filing in the November 5, 2003, Order docketed as #1110.

Sincerely,

/S/

Leonie M. Brinkema
United States District Judge
